DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 10-13, 15 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Schorner (6,409,034)

Schorner discloses, in figs. 1-3, and col. 5, lines 44-50, a hinge structure 28 comprising an elastomeric element 30 exerting a force to urge a lid from a closed position toward an open position. The elastomeric element is outwardly exposed in the closed position as well as open position. It is inherent that the elastomeric element has an outer surface that is in tension when the lid is in the closed position and has an inner surface being in compression when the lid is in closed position.

In regard to claim 12, the method of making, for example, bi-injection molding does not have a patentable weight in the product-by-process claim (see MPEP2113)

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 10-13, 15 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Durkee (5,931,828).

Durkee discloses, in figs. 1-3, and col. 4, lines 44-48, a hinge structure 56 comprising an elastomeric element (60,62) exerting a force to urge a lid from a closed position toward an open position. The elastomeric element is outwardly exposed in the closed position as well as open position. It is inherent that the elastomeric element has an outer surface that is in tension when the lid is in the closed position and has an inner surface being in compression when the lid is in closed position.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 14 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schorner or Durkee. Although Schorner or Durkee does not disclose the elastomeric element being rubber, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the elastomeric element being rubber in order provide a desired flexible hinge, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.
